EASTERN NEW MEXICO UNIVERSITY

For close to 100 years, Eastern New Mexico University (ENMU) has prepared students for careers and advanced study. Its mission is to emphasize liberal learning, freedom of inquiry, cultural diversity, and whole student life. ENMU serves students of traditional age, adult learners and organizations through undergraduate and graduate programs.

ENMU opened its doors in 1934 as Eastern New Mexico Junior College. In 1940, after adding additional classes leading to a bachelor's degree, the institution was renamed Eastern New Mexico College. ENMU was accredited as a four-year liberal arts college in 1946-47. Graduate work leading to master's degrees was added in 1949, and on April 5, 1949, the Board of Regents approved the change of the institution's name to Eastern New Mexico University. ENMU is now New Mexico's largest regional comprehensive university.

Today ENMU Portales enrolls 5,398 students and offers over 72 distinct certificate, associate's, bachelor's and master's degree programs. It enjoys a 16:1 student-faculty ratio, and a 97% student satisfaction rate. Its tuition rates are among the lowest in the region, and Texas students within a 135-mile radius qualify for ENMU's in-state tuition. Popular undergraduate majors are business administration, communicative disorders, social work, and applied arts and sciences. The largest graduate programs are education, business administration, and communicative disorders.

ENMU Roswell, the largest of ENMU's branch campuses, is a community college of 1,979 students, offering 95 distinct associate degree and certificate programs. Roswell is the fifth largest city in New Mexico and also home to the New Mexico Military Institute.

ENMU Ruidoso is the newest member of the ENMU System, designated a branch community college campus by the State of New Mexico in 2005. Currently enrolling 745 students, it offers 45 distinct associate degrees and certificates, and serves the mountain village of Ruidoso and surrounding areas.
